

CRADLEY CE PRIMARY SCHOOL

Cultural Capital at Cradley School

What does Cultural Capital mean at Cradley CE Primary School?

Every child and family who joins our school is unique, and will have their own knowledge and experiences informed by their culture and wider experiences. This might include: languages, beliefs, traditions, cultural and family heritage, interests, travel and work.

Valuing all aspects of our unique families helps us to close gaps and support equality of opportunity. Cultural Capital gives power. It helps children achieve goals, become successful, and rise up the social ladder without necessarily having wealth or financial capital. Cultural Capital is having assets that give children the desire to aspire and achieve social mobility whatever their starting point.

At Cradley we believe Cultural Capital is the accumulation of knowledge, behaviours, and skills that a child can draw upon to demonstrate their competence and understanding of the world. The more we equip children the more successful in society, their career and the world of work.

Cradley Schools' curriculum is broad, rich and inspiring, engendering an appreciation of human creativity and achievement. Our curriculum encourages children to ask questions and introduces them to the best that has been thought and said.

Exposure is paramount to children's ongoing successes and understanding. A wide range of experiences in our curriculum builds cultural capital. Here are just a few:

- Appreciation and love of music through creating, playing instruments, and giving meaningful performances, such in Hereford Cathedral, Powick Community choir at Stanbrook Abbey, Herefordshire Performing Arts Festival or Young Voices concerts;
- Acquiring a language through Spanish lessons and language after school clubs;
- Celebrating different cultures and faiths and thinking about local and global communities with our link with Cradley Chapel and Sierra Leone;
- Understanding how history has shaped our future;
- Building our understanding of supporting others and championing advocacy;
- Learning about our environment and comparing it to others;
- Growing vegetables and fruit to eat and cook;
- Being informed and feeling empowered in our school council;
